To strengthen our dedicated team in the research department “Multilinguality and Language Technology” in Saarbrücken from 1 March 2020, we are looking for a

Researcher (m/f/d)

(part-time 60%, initially limited until end of 2021)

The research department “Multilinguality and Language Technology” (MLT) in Saarbrücken is headed by Prof. Dr. Josef van Genabith. The European initiative “European Language Resource Coordination” supports the collection of language data, tools and services that enable the adaptation of the European Commission’s eTranslation system according to the needs of public services and public administration in all EU Member States, Iceland and Norway.

Your tasks include:

- Preparing and organising conferences, workshops and exhibitions in Europe;
- Updating the European Country Profiles;
- Supporting PR and preparing training materials;
- Cooperating with project partners, National Anchor Points and representatives of national government offices and ministries in all CEF affiliated countries.

Your qualifications are:

- Degree in computer linguistics, intercultural communications and/or language and translation sciences;
- Excellent language skills in English, French and German, extraordinary high level of self-motivation;
- Outstanding communication skills and service-orientation;
- Independent and goal-oriented working style;
- Availability for travel.

You can expect the following benefits:

- The opportunity to be involved in a Europe-wide innovative initiative to digitise the European market.
- An innovative, agile and professional research environment at one of the outstanding IT locations in Germany.

Please submit your meaningful application by January 20, 2020 as PDF to Andrea Lösch (andrea.loesch@dfki.de) indicating your earliest possible start date.